Can you spot the hazard?

Why do you think climbing technique matters?

Leaning back while climbing a ladder increases torque to your shoulder by at least 50% and increases your odds of developing a shoulder injury. Hold your body close to the ladder so your weight is on your legs while your arms are just used to stabilize.

Make the wise decision to protect your body and your career.

Follow on Twitter @TruckSafe

www.KeepTruckingSafe.org

CDC/NIOSH Grant No. U60 OH008487

Publication No. 90-134-2013

Washingto

Washington State Department of Labor & Industries

December 2013